RE: Keystone Landfill Superfund Site Fourth-Party Defendant

Chris, 114568
this pack is similar to that which I'm etc Shanku

Well, I'm dumbfounded again! We assumed the purpose of the E.P.A.'s de micromis settlement offer was supposed to unburden the small, non-toxic waste producers from the entanglements of the Keystone Superfund "madness".

We anticipated seeing the name "Swinn's Rentals" being close to the top of the list in the E.P.A.'s tier 1 settlement. To our great anxiety and dread, we were not. We certainly assumed that we could not miss the second tier of mini-waste makers, but low and behold, the lunacy of the whole thing continued when we were, again, not selected.

"Swinn's Rentals" was my grandfather's business, consisting of three converted homes made into eight apartments and a small tourist home business. My grandfather, as well as myself, lived in these homes. The rental part of this business created only a small amount of garbage -- especially since the apartments were mostly small - two to three rooms and a bath, singularly occupied, and usually four of the eight tenants were elderly single women (and we all know how much trash they create).

When I calculated the amount of household only waste that the tenants generated, it came to 177 cubic yards. This is fairly insignificant when the cut-off for de micromis settlement was set at 1800 cubic yards. The root of our dilemma began with an A2S report that had us listed as creating 1914 cubic yards between the years 1978 and 1990. This is an incredible figure for us to comprehend because you can only stuff so much garbage in the two 20-gallon metal trash cans that each building used for their total trash collection. Each building - one with four tenants, one with three tenants and one with one tenant and two tourist home guests generated no more - if not less - trash than a typical household. Single apartment dwellers - especially elderly ladies - just don't produce much trash.

Could the assumptions of the A2S report be erroneous? This report has Swinn's Rentals listed as generating more trash than each of two Adams County school districts! The county's largest school district has over 4,000 students and staff in seven buildings and yet my grandfather's tenants supposedly generated more trash than it. The current trash bill for this school district is $12,000 a year (even with an active recycling program that I helped develop in the mid-1980's) while the combined garbage bill for the two apartment houses is only $400.00 per year (the tourist home is now a private residence). Incredulous!

The fact that we were not selected for de micromis on the grounds of the size of our waste stream is unfathomable -- but we realize that the E.P.A. may not have wanted a challenge to any of their selections from the other parties of this suit. Okay, but the fact that we weren't on the list since we only had Keystone Sanitation as our waste hauler for one-half the relevant time period is unpardonable.

Keystone became our waste hauler officially in June of 1984. Since the relevant time period for the A2S report is from 1978 through March, 1990 (12 years), it does not take a rocket scientist to calculate that, even using the ridiculous A2S quantity, the MOST we would have generated was only half of the A2S amount or 957 cubic yards between June, 1984 and March, 1990 (5 years, 10 months). 957 cubic yards should have placed us on the de micromis settlement list. This is especially upsetting because there is evidence indicating that our trash didn't go to the Keystone site for several years once they became our waste hauler in June, 1984. The Gettysburg Times reported in November, 1983 that Keystone would use the same trucks, people, routes and landfill (Tyrone Township) after they purchased Adams Sanitation (our former waste hauler).

In this country, we often use the expression that "you're innocent until proven guilty". This doesn't seem to apply in this case. All of the official documents from the various parties in this case, along with our attorney's papers and his fees make us feel like our grandparents were guilty of heinous crimes. Actually they were only guilty of assuming that if you run a small business, pay your bills in a timely fashion without question, and always try to be a good person, good things will come your way. I guess in today's world what we learn is nice guys finish last and good people are easy to take advantage of.

This is certainly not the message I want to pass on to my children and theirs. We would appreciate your assistance in any way it can be given.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Re: U.S. of America v. Keystone Sanitation Company, Inc., et al.

Dear Attorney Hall:

I felt compelled to submit a follow-up note to our discussion of this date regarding Fourth-Party Defendant Swinn's Rentals. Swinn's predicament in this case is among the select few that cries out for relief.

Again, the Swinn rentals were to elderly tenants. Further, each of the three locations had either 1 or 2 standard 30 gallon trash cans; these are not multi-unit apartment complexes. More importantly, the Swinns used Adams Sanitation at all times prior to June 1984, and the trash for that entire prior time period was taken to the Adams County landfill. We have no way of knowing what documents or assumptions were made in the A2S Report. What we do know is that the facts set forth in the Swinn's Questionnaire are 100% correct and 100% defensible.

If I can provide you with any further information in support of the Swinn's inclusion in the de micromis group, I will do so with all possible dispatch.

Very truly yours,

Steven D. Stambaugh, Esq.

Sanitation Company is sold to Keystone owners

Adams Sanitation Company announced Tuesday the sale of its business to Kenneth F. Wolf and Anne N. Wolf, his wife, on Nov. 15. The Wols are the sole owners of Keystone Sanitation Company of Hanover R. I. Adams Sanitation was incorporated in 1960 and over the last 10 years Keystone had become its principal competitor. Keystone, however, operates in a number of other areas where Adams Sanitation does not.

Charles W. Wolf, president of Adams Sanitation, said that ADSCO will be completely liquidated within 12 months. Mr. Wolf added that the principal factor in the decision of ADSCO's Board of Directors to sell the company was Pennsylvania's recent press statement indicating that over the next 10 years there could be dramatic increases in the cost of landfill operations, which would, of course, result in increased rates to the customers. He added that landfills statewide are now facing all kinds of environmental issues and problems with landfill disposal. The landfill operation has become a scientific and technical operation requiring sanitary engineers, soil scientists, and almost day to day water sampling. The whole thing has become a very sophisticated operation.

ADSCO's landfill has been along the Cranberry Road in Tyrone Township since the early 1970's but is owned by the Estate of the late Nettie S. Hendrick.

Keystone's landfill is located on its own farm, with very adequate room for expansion and is likewise a state licensed landfill. Wolf pointed out that having two landfills in the county over the long run will not be efficient or cost effective. However, at the present time, the Tyrone Township landfill will continue to be used, maybe for some years to come.

ADSCO was incorporated in 1960 at the request of the then Adams County Commissioners, who wanted the garbage and refuse collection to be properly done in 1963, the 100th Anniversary of the Battle of Gettysburg. In 1963 there were five garbage and refuse collectors operating in Gettysburg, and all needed new and modern and leak-proof equipment to properly serve the borough. In addition, all of them were in a rate war for the business. The problems were compounded by the State Health Department ordering the Gettysburg Borough "dump" at the south end of town to be closed for health reasons. The Borough and the State had been in conflict for several years over the Borough's so-called landfill and the situation had resulted in creating a substantial health hazard over the south end of Gettysburg.

To solve the new Adams Sanitation Company to buy modern equipment and open its own landfill the Borough gave the company an exclusive license for five years. ADSCO opened a new landfill and it operated for approximately five years, when the company opened its present landfill in Tyrone Township.

exclusive licenses for refuse collection, most on a five year basis, and ADSCO today still services Dillsburg and New Oxford under exclusive licenses.

Wolf said that the conditions of the sale of the business include appropriate protection for ADSCO's 18 employees, a number of whom have been with the company for many years. Adams Sanitation Company, Inc., the successor company, will continue to operate with ADSCO's employees and for the intermediate future, ADSCO's trucks and employees will cover the route systems that it has previously been operating.

On Nov. 9, ADSCO gave a dinner for all its employees in appreciation and recognition of the many years of faithful service rendered the company. Each employee was given an appropriate award for his service and Donald Waddell, who came with ADSCO when it was incorporated, was given a special award in recognition of his 23 years of continuous services with ADSCO and his 15 years as manager of the Company. Waddell had previously worked a number of years for his father in the refuse collection business.

John W. Purdy, who has been the general manager of ADSCO since 1978 will continue in managerial duties with Keystone. Waddell will retire on Dec. 31 of this year.

Keystone operates its own truck and equipment maintenance department. Its total operation is substantially larger than ADSCO's.

Wolf pointed out that ADSCO had from its beginning been operating as a public service company and made its financial reports and operations available to all of the boroughs in connection with rate increases. He added that a typical example of the substantial cost increases over the years is that a brand new collection truck cost the company $17,000 in 1960 and that the same truck today costs almost $75,000. He added that to have ADSCO and Keystone driving up and down the same streets in the same boroughs with two $75,000 pieces of equipment was an inefficient, economic waste, and that if rates are to be kept under any kind of reasonable control in the future, every avenue of cost effectiveness, utilization of equipment, productivity of the employees and so forth had to be taken into account. He stated that neither company had had a rate increase since the early part of 1980 and that the sale to Keystone Sanitation Company will not be the cause of any rate increases but should help to keep down rate increases in the years to come. He said that the two companies will have to integrate their operations in all of the areas served by both companies and that the savings in the efficiency of the combined system will be a large factor in minimizing future rate increases. He pointed out that almost every cost factor has been increasing year after year — not only labor, but insurance, truck accessories and parts, and particularly landfill equipment and parts.
